

7 ATTACKED DELEGATES CHARGE DRY "BOSSISM"

DECLARE DRY'S WANT SACRIFICE OF "THE PEOPLE"

Members Are Recognized Drys; Declare His Charges Lies.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Springfield, Ill., Feb. 7.—Declaring that there is no exception which will permit the Anti-Saloon League to practice "bossism," seven Chicago members of the constitutional convention and recognized "drys" today condemned F. Scott McBride, state superintendent of the league, for his charges last week that "special interests" were in control of delegates who opposed the county representation plan, the seven members—delegates Cutting, Daves, Breckman, Hull Dupee, Sutherland and Amos Miller—asserted that McBride's charges and institutions are untrue.

Asserting that they were elected "with the approval of the Anti-Saloon League but unpledged to any specific action," the protesting delegates asked as a matter of personal privilege that their statement be spread upon the record of the conference.

Declaring that their position is one of unwillingness "to sacrifice the people," the seven declared Mr. McBride's intends a campaign to defeat staunch supporters of moral legislation "who happen to disagree with his personal views."

Ask McBride's Meaning.

The statement in part continues: "When he says 'better a thousand times have no constitution,' does he signify not only that Anti-saloon funds will be diverted from the vital and desirable purpose of law enforcement for which they were given, but also that he will favor and urge a continued violation of the present constitution (which will remain in force, if the new document is defeated) in the matter of legislative apportionment. We protest that our demands for enforcement of the federal constitution would be weakened, should our natural allies thus demand simultaneously a violation of the state constitution."

Does Mr. McBride seriously suggest that we, or any other members of this convention, who had anti-saloon endorsement, have been subject to "wet" influences in this matter?

What are the "other doubtful interests" to which he refers in the same connection?

Do they include, the Chicago Bar Association, the City Club, the Citizen's Association, the Chicago Woman's Club, the Woman's City Club, the Chicago Association of Commerce and the many other civic organizations, at which have disagreed with Mr. McBride? Do they include the Rev. Herbert L. Willard, formerly president of the Chicago Church Federation, now Vice Chairman of the Citizens Committee, for proportional representation; numerous other mints of the gospel and the Presbytery of Chicago—all of them having publickly taken an issue with Mr. McBride's theories of representation?

Mr. McBride's grievance seems to be particularly directed to the Cook county delegates who received the aid and support of the Anti-Saloon league and yet a large number of the delegates representing down state constituencies were opposed to the plan which he favors and were without the embarrassment which every delegate from Cook county would have from voting away political rights heretofore always legally in the possession of his own constituents.

Fundamental Equality.

The plain implication of this statement is that the "big majority" of the members of the convention, who received the support of the league as its members at the elections, owe a debt which can be satisfied only by a surrender of their judgments with respect to the most important measure before the convention, to-wit: the one involving the fundamental question of political equality. We respectfully submit that the "big majority" of the members of the convention "whether from Cook county or from downstate and whether supported by Mr. McBride or not, are under no obligation to surrender their judgments in advance to any person or organization, and that the assumption that they are under such an obligation is an assertion of the right to boss the convention and ought to be recognized as such. And as if bossism is a vice of our political life, it has no exception which would permit the Anti-Saloon League to practice it—especially in a field so far removed from its proper sphere as this is recognized to be, both by lay and clerical supporters of the Anti-Saloon League's cause."

EXPECT NEW POPE TO HEAL BREACH BETWEEN CHURCH AND GOVT.

Previous Speech of New Pontiff is Recalled By Prophets.

Rome, Feb. 7.—By the Associated Press—The Vatican today began to resume its usual brilliance, eclipsed by the death of Benedict XV, in preparation for the coronation of the new pope, Pius XI, on February 12. The pontifical household was being set in order, and the rooms used by the conclave during the election will soon assume their normal appearance.

All Italy, judging from the messages received at the Holy See, seems full of joy that Pope Pius XI sits on the throne of St. Peter. All predict from his first apostolic benediction that the breach between the church and the state will be healed during the present pontificate.

The pontiff's position in this regard as summed up in a speech which he delivered when installed last summer as archbishop of Milan, is now being widely quoted. He then said:

"It is, above all, abroad that one sees and feels how the pope constitutes the greatest dignity and prestige for Italy. Through him all the millions of Catholics in the whole world turn to Italy as a second fatherland. Through him, Rome is truly the capital of the world."

Prestige to Italy

"One would have to close his eyes not to see the prestige and advantages our country derives by his presence. When international weight is considered, he is super-nationally sovereign. All nations recognize in him a divine institution. We Catholics of Italy who by divine ordination have the care of him are responsible in honor before the Catholics of the whole world."

Pius XI, is occupied with the preparation of long lists of the prelates who will surround him as the spiritual head of 300,000,000 persons. There are unlikely to be radical changes in the pontifical household, since Cardinal Gasparri retains his post as secretary of state, and many of Benedict's appointees are certain to be reinstated.

An army of workmen was busy in the Vatican today, reestablishing the offices, ante rooms and audience-chambers, and the beds, tables, chairs and wash stands used for the conclave were being returned to the hospitals and colleges from which they were secured.

Within a day or two all will be as usual, ambassadors will be making their calls on the new pontiff, and the robes of the prelates and uniforms of the diplomats again will be in evidence.

Pinned Under Car When It Overtures

Sterling Gazette—Frank Geiger had a very narrow escape from serious injury Saturday night about 7:30 o'clock when something went wrong with the steering apparatus of his car and it turned over several times and landed in the ditch on the Lincoln Highway, just east of his city. Mr. Geiger was pinned beneath the car and remained there in an unconscious state for some time before he regained consciousness and was able to release himself and crawl out from under the wrecked machine.

The car was quite badly damaged. Mr. Geiger received a number of bruises and cuts, but feels that he was fortunate in escaping without more serious injury. He was on his way to Dixon at the time of the accident to visit at the home of his wife's mother, Mrs. Geiger being in Dixon taking care of her mother, who has been quite ill for some time past.

Father Passed Away During Son's Visit

John Miller, former turnkey at the county jail and until recently employed by the American Express company, who is visiting relatives at York Springs, Pa., writes friends here that he buried his father several days ago. Mr. Miller writes that he is enjoying himself as best he can under the circumstances, and that he hopes to return to Dixon about April 1st. It had been 15 years since Mr. Miller had seen his relatives in Pennsylvania.

PURE FOOD SHOW OF DIXON MERCHANTS AT K. C. HALL THIS EVE

Entertainment and Big Exhibit to Be Given Free Tonight.

The Dixon Chamber of Commerce issues the following statement concerning the Pure Food Show which opens this evening at the Armory:

The merchants of Dixon who are giving the public a chance to test quality goods at the pure food show held tonight, Wednesday and Thursday have offered to the public to compete with any of the mail order houses, giving quality goods so purchased. Any citizen of Dixon who has made up an order or intends to send to these mail order houses can get it filled for the same price as offered by these houses and possibly less, at the same time getting the best brands of goods for their money. This action was taken after W. H. Fleming and W. C. Jones stated that they have filled orders originally intended for the mail order houses and in the last case this week not only saved the freight for the purchaser, but also 20 cents on the order. Now is your chance to prove whether or not the merchants of Dixon are trying to give you your foodstuffs at the lowest possible price, at the same time giving you quality goods. Remember there is a difference, and a great difference, in cheap brands and quality brands. Your order will be taken at the Food Show any night this week. Don't forget the valuable prizes.

Royal and Price Baking Powder Co. have added to the prize list two 2½ lbs. of Price Baking Powder each night.

Progress was slow as the heat from the wreckage was still intense.

To Check Up Goods Returned to Crane Farm By Divorcee

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Aurora, Ill., Feb. 7.—An inventory committee of three, named by Judge Adam C. Cliffe, of the Kane county circuit court before 7 o'clock this morning repaired to the Wildwood farm near St. Charles for an all day delving into the barrels and crates of presents returned from New York to millionaire Herbert V. Crane by his former wife Elida Plaza, as a preliminary to the filing of her claim in the circuit court to Crane's country estate on a $70,000 balance of a $100,000 alimony award made her in November 1920, when she divorced her wealthy husband. The barrels and crates were dumped on the farm lawn more than a week ago and have lain there since, employees on the estate and Val Crane, son of Mr. Crane, even refused to accept the shipment. The committee of three which with the poise and culture of Mr. Taylor's slaying.

Thinking it possible that the butler feared prosecution on the grand larceny charge preferred against him last summer by Taylor, the police announced that it would not be pressed against him, in fact, that it could not be, as Taylor, the complaining witness was dead.

Examine Actress.

Another angle of the case involved the "long and grueling" examination, as the detectives describe it, of a well known motion picture actress at her home near here. They declined to name her, but admitted she was one of a number who have indicated interest in Taylor.

While these developments were in progress and the police were sifting the constantly arriving "tips" from various sources, preparations were being made for the funeral of the dead director this afternoon.

This, also, was not overlooked by the police, for not only were ten uniformed men detailed to keep in order the great crowd expected to gather about St. Paul's Episcopal Pro-Cathedral at 2 o'clock this afternoon, but a number of plain clothes men also were assigned to funeral duty in the hope that even there they might obtain a clew to the murderer.

Taylor's body, clad in the uniform of a captain in the British army, has been viewed by thousands in the undertaking establishment where it lies awaiting today's rites.

Many Flowers Received.

Flowers have come from many motion picture sources, including Mary Miles Minter, film actress, who sent a huge bouquet of black prince roses. Miss Minter took a last look at her friend Friday afternoon. Mabel Normand, another actress, was one of the last to see Taylor alive, viewed his body for the last time at the inquest Saturday.

As the capacity of the Pro-Cathedral is limited, half of the seats will be set aside for members of the film colony, and the other half for the public in general.

Eight active pall-bearers from the members of the Motion Picture Directors' association, and eight honorary ones from the British overseas club have been named. In addition there will be a firing squad of Canadian ex-service men, who will fire a salute over the casket at the cemetery.

The Very Rev. William MacCormack, dean of St. Paul's, will read the burial service. The body will be taken to Hollywood cemetery and placed in a vault until relatives determine final disposition.

Took Dancing Lessons.

The mystery of where Taylor passed the time between five and six o'clock last Wednesday afternoon, approximately two hours before he was slain, previously unexplained, was solved here today.

Detectives learned he had gone to a dancing academy for a lesson.

Los Angeles, Feb. 7.—Sheriff Harris of Elko, Nevada, telephoned to the police department here today the man at Carlin, Nevada, thought to be Edward F. Sands, wanted in connection with the murder of William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director here, was not Sands, and has given a satisfactory account of his movements, which dissolved all suspicion.

Warrant For Butler.

A telegraphic warrant charging Edward F. Sands, alias Edward Fritz Strathmore, former butler to William Desmond Taylor, with the murder of the film director in his apartment here, was issued by the police department late last night and wired to Constable A. B. Berning at Carlin, Nevada, according to information received by the Los Angeles Examiner this morning.

The police had taken this action, it was stated, following the receipt of a telegram earlier in the evening from Constable Berning in that he had under surveillance there a man whose description was sent to answer to that of Sands.

A complete description of Sands was telegraphed to Constable Berning with instructions to take the suspect there into custody, provided he answered the details pictured by the local police.

The suspicions of Constable Berning at Carlin, were aroused when he learned that the man under surveillance at that point planned to board the train today at Elko, according to word received here. The police believe Sands can solve the enigma of Taylor's slaying.

King George Praises Washington Meeting

By Associated Press Leased Wire

London, Feb. 7.—(By the Associated Press)—The Imperial Parliament

which was prorogued December 19,

to await action on the Irish treaty by the Dail Eireann, was reopened today

with the reading of the speech from the throne by King George.

Regarding the Irish treaty, the king said parliament would be called on to consider "such measures as may be necessary to give effect to the agreement." He also touched on the negotiations for a pact with France

to guarantee action in the event of an unprovoked attack by Germany

and paid high tribute to the accomplishment of the Washington conference.

In his speech the king said:

"During the last three months the Washington conference on the questions of disarmament and the far east

continued its sessions, a treaty which the Pacific has been signed by representatives of the British Empire, the United States, France and Japan, and awaits ratification.

While this treaty replaces the Anglo-Japanese alliance, I am happy to feel that the London standing of concord between the two countries will remain as cordial as ever under the arrangements thus concluded. At the same time our relations with the United States of America enter a new and even closer phase of friendship."

An agreement also was reached on the question of disarmament and a treaty has been signed providing a large measure of relief from the burden of armaments. In all these respects great results have been attained and the success of the conference, for which the world will be deeply grateful.

D. A. R. IN PLEASANT MEETING—

The members of the D. A. R. and their guests were delightfully entertained Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Tillson and assisting hostesses at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Howell. A program of music, recitations and quotations from our loved and honored Washington and Lincoln was given, sources replete with both wit and wisdom.

Mrs. Burnham who had charge of the program introduced Miss Hecker, a promising pupil of hers, who gave a very pleasing account of General Washington's graciousness in receiving a slight favor from a young girl. Miss Hecker responded to an encore.

Mrs. Abell, to whom the D. A. R. members are indebted for former recitations, riveted the attention of her audience with a finely rendered story of patriotism during the Revolutionary War. Her encore was inspiring, inviting to perseverance under difficulties. Mrs. Nichols gave a delightful poem, "Kindness of Spirit." Delicious refreshments were served in the dining room, Mrs. Hitchcock and Miss Pratt, the Regent, pouring.

I AM WHISKY

The following anonymous article,
which appeared in the Chicago Herald-Examiner, is worth reading:To me virtue is a vice.
Honesty is a lie.
Decency is a farce.
Decency is a crime.
Godliness is a joke.I am no respecter of person. I take the brains from the gifted, the brawn
from the workman, the skill from the mechanic, the voice from the singer,
the eye from the painter.I steal the minds of men; rob them
of their heart, quench the fires of their ambition, paralyze their bodies, and destroy their soul.Idleness is my servant. I hate industry. I despise the worker. Thrift is my enemy.

Ambition is my curse.

I destroy the industry of the needy,
wreck the business of the well-to-do,
pillage the state of its progress and promise, burn out the conscience of the idle rich.The potter's field is the product of my ingenuity. I am the destroyer of manhood. I am the wrecker of womanhood. I am the debaucher of the virgin, the tempter of vigorous boy-hood. I am the curse of the world.I set fires in the dead of night to the homes of humanity.I go with the porch climbers at midnight to the homes of the innocent.The robber consults me before putting his gun to the heart of his victim.The burglar is never without me—
we are partners in crime.I stand guard at the divorce courts,
I bribe witnesses, buy jurors, plan subordination of perjury, corrupt justice.I commit murder, I inspire riots, I fill the jail houses. I am present at nine-tenth of the quarrels of mankind.I am the near neighbor of the loafer, the handmaiden of poverty, the agent of the madhouse, the partner of the dynamiter, the bedfellow of the bombthrower.I steal the bread from little children. I rob the widow of her patri-mony.I choke ambitions, and hiss the dreamer for his rewards.I make sport of the beatitudes and despite the ten commandments.I am the despoiler of the home and fireside.I am the father of deformity, the parent of the idiot, the sire of the feeble minded. Blindness at birth is one of the brands of my making.I have violated every law enacted by mankind for his government.I have broken every commandment given by Moses by the Almighty at Mount Sinai.I have trampled under by cloven feet each of the beatitudes recited by the Savior.I have even entered the sanctuary and bribed the priest to do my bidding.I lead the mob in every unlawful enterprise.I pull the rope at every lynching party in the country.I set the torch when the striking forces get beyond control.In the war, I am served with the order of the king to kill to the utter-most.For me men will perjure their souls
in denying they know me, shield me from the search of the officer who is seeking to destroy me.Mortgage the house covering the wives and children, go hungry and naked for my friendship, deny the mother who succored them for my fellowship.I am more powerful than kings; my country is the world.To prove it, every year I slaughter more than a million of my subjects.To show my strength I have caused mighty ships laden with women and children to go plunging to bottom of the deep.

I have caused trains to crash into each other, killing and wounding to show my contempt for the laws that have tried to cripple me.I have been more powerful than governments that sought to control me.I have defied them and they have cringed and crumpled at my command.In the last thousand years I have killed more than wars and made widows and orphans of more unfortunate than war and pestilence combined.Men have passed law to free the slave, but today I own more slaves than all the slaveholders of the earth.I am the czar in command of crime's army, and as to me disregard for law is the main reason for my existence.

"I am God's worst enemy."

"I am the devil's best friend."

THE NEW WORLD

Allan Upward once wrote a remarkable book called "The New World." That word, as the reader learned somewhere near the back cover of the book, was "idealism."
Materialism as a living faith was set down as doomed. Nobel had struck boldly for idealism in offering his prizes for conspicuous achievement
and the whole process of civilization fast seem to be swinging toward the ideal.Then came another word, "efi-ciency," which seemed to hold the field for awhile. Its necessity continues to stand forth, as it always will.Now there is still another "new word." It is heard on every side. It is on almost every tongue. It might be called the motto of the present day or at least the destiner motto of tomorrow. People are just beginning to realize it consciously.It is "cooperation." And it really seems to combine the best sense of each of the others. It is idealistic insofar as it means the getting together of nations and classes and individuals for the promotion of their common welfare along many lines.The wonderfully successful efforts at international disarmament and understandings—all reached by the gradual development, step by step, of a real spirit of cooperation—are good illustrations.Cooperation is seen by the hopeful as replacing the fruitless warfare of nations, and pointing the way to the ending of mostly warfare between industrial groups. It is also grasped at by those who profess not farther than a desire for team work
in business because "that is the best way to get things done." A most notable effort in this direction, Thrift is that of the American farmers,who never before have worked earnestly together for a common purpose.This may be the great pioneer year of cooperation. Any man or group or nation that insists on going it alone—when cooperation is offered on a fair basis—may get the worst of
it. But cooperation can never be said to be in effect with one individual or group or nation expected to do all the working or all the paying.Twenty-two workers are out of jobs

fine sense an index to his character.
A well to do woman does not wear the same apparel to a funeral and a wedding. Rather she makes the costume in some sense expressive of her thought about the occasion. If the sport suit expresses her idea about God and religion and the church —
why does she go to church?

DIGESTIVE MUSIC

Sir James Dundas-Grant is referred to as authority in the London Dispatch which sets forth his ideas about music as an aid to digestion. Occasionally some courageous mortal is heard to murmur against the prevailing custom of serving music with the food in public eating places. These persons have maintained that they would prefer peace and quiet and an opportunity for friendly conversation. According to Sir James,
however, it is only the type of music
to which they have been subjected that has turned them against music in the dining room.Jazz has become the national anthem, says Rev. Dr. Percival Stickney Grant, prominent Episcopal clergyman of New York.He is right, but a few months behind.Jazz was the national anthem. Now it is losing its grip, preparing to depart. Wholesomeness is slowly returning. America, distracted by the war, is getting control of its nerves again.Plato, reporter for Socrates, said that whenever modes of music change,
morals change.Morals are getting better in America—especially business morals.

WITCHES

Every farmer has seen or heard of traveling "water witches" who claimed to be able to locate water wells by divining rods. These rods usually are peach twigs or witch-razel wands which, the witches claim, dip when running water lies beneath.The divining rod is the basis of many a swindle by fakers who claim to be able to locate oil or gold with them.Now comes G. M. Butler, director of the Arizona Bureau of Mines. He has perfected and applied for patents
on an electrical apparatus for locating underground deposits of ore.The Barry contraption is about the size of a washing machine. It han-

ASHTON ATHLETE NAMED IN SPORT PROBE BY STAGG

Forrest Paddock Probably Will Lose Place
on Team.

Forrest Paddock of Ashton, who for several seasons has been rated as one of the premier young baseball twirlers of this locality, may come to grief as the result of the recent war in college circles on professional and semi-professional athletics. Paddock is now attending the University of Wisconsin at Madison and was honored by being elected captain of the 1922 baseball team.

Coach Alonso Stagg spent Friday in DeKalb investigating the case of Paddock and other college athletes. At the close of a two hour conference, the coach intimated that among others, Paddock was classed as a professional on account of his participation in professional and semi-professional games in and about DeKalb last summer.

If the charges are carried through it will be hard for Paddock to have to stop playing ball and give up the title of captain of the university team as well. The question of barring a player for playing in a professional game during the summer months is one that has been much discussed but the rule remains, and a man is rated as being a professional if he participates in any game in which he or any member of the team accepts remuneration for his services.

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 6.—A $100,000 damage suit, charging Governor Lee M. Russell of Mississippi with seducing Miss Frances C. Kirkland, a former employee of his office was filed against the chief executive, this morning in

ABE MARTIN

Russell of Mississippi, over long distance telephone called to a representative of the Associated Press here today that the filing of a $100,000 damage suit against him by Miss Frances Kirkland, charging him with seduction, was the most damnable blackmail conspiracy ever attempted in the history of Mississippi politics. Further comment was refused.

The Best None Too Good

"After many years of stomach suffering I have at least found a medicine for that trouble. But believe me it was a timely find. I couldn't have lasted a great while longer. My stomach would blot with gas like a barrel and the colics got to be awful. Medicine didn't help much until I got hold of May's Wonderful Remedy, which did the trick. I am telling everyone about it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and relieves the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—Adv.

On the evening of the tenth day Burns put in the cork.

A string of eight-inch pipe sixty feet long was slid forward and derricked over the stream. The pipe had been fitted with valves of various sizes. After it had been fastened to the well's casing, these were gradually reduced to check the flow.

Six hours later a metropolitan newspaper carried the headline:

BIG GUSHER HARNESSL

Jackpot No. 3 at Malapai Tamed;

Long Battle Ended.

CHAPTER XVII.

It was a surprise to Dave to discover on setting out for the scene of the hold-up that the horse Steve had got for him was his own old favorite Chiquito. The pinto knew him. He tested this by putting him through some of his old tricks. He nuzzled his silly nose against the coat of his master just as in the days of old.

Crawford searched over the ground. "Just like I thought, Dave. The posse has been here and stomped out any tracks. No way of tellin' which of all these footprints belonged to them. Likely none of 'em."

They made a wide circle to try to pick up the trail wanted, and again a still larger one.

The trailers scanned closely the edge of the irrigation ditch.

Dave pulled up. He went down on his knees and studied the ground, then jumped down into the ditch and examined the bank.

"Here's where they got out," he announced.

The old cattleman examined the side of the canal. The clay showed where a sharp hoof had reached for a footing, missed, and pawed down the bank. Higher up was the faint mark of a shoe on the loose rubble at the edge.

"Looks like," he assented.

The trail led through the canon, over a divide beyond, and down into a small cabin squatting on the slope.

A log cabin squatted on the slope. One had to be almost upon it before it could be seen. Its back door looked down upon the entrance to a canon. This was fenced across to make a corral.

The cattleman and the cow-puncher looked at each other without verbal comment. This was the haunt of rustlers.

Horses were drowsing sleepily in the corral. Dave slid from the saddle and spoke to Crawford in a low voice.

"I'm going down to have a look at those horses," he said, unfastening his rope from the tientos.

Dave walked down the steep hill-side, and dropped into the corral.

A man came to the back door of the cabin and stretched in a long and luxuriant yawn. Carelessly and casually his eyes wandered over the corral. For a moment he stood frozen, his arms still flung wide.

From behind him came Crawford's voice, cool and ironic. "Much obliged, Shorty. Leave 'em right up and save trouble."

The squat cowpuncher's eyes found there the owner of the D Bar Lazy R. "Whadaya want?" he growled sullenly.

"You just now, Dave, step forward and get his six-shooter. Keep him between you and the house. If anything happens to you I'm goin' to kill him right now."

Sanders took the man's gun and ran his hand over his thick body to make sure he had no concealed weapon. "I'm going to back away. You come after me, step by step, so close I could touch you with the gun," ordered Dave.

The man followed him as directed, his hands still in the air. His captor kept him in a line between him and the house door. Crawford rode down to join them.

"You live here, Shorty?" asked Crawford curtly.

"Yes." The answer was sulky and reluctant.

"Ain't?"

Crawford turned to Sanders. "What about the horse you looked at, Dave?"

"Same one we've been trailing. The one with the broken shoe."

"That yore horse, Shorty?"

"Mayboso. Maybe not."

"You've been havin' company here."

MOTHER! CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP.

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Adv.

Sanders after a short chase gave up the pursuit. He rode back to the party on the summit.

Crawford glanced around at the heavy chaperon. "How about off here a bit Dave?"

The younger man agreed. He turned to Miller. "We're going to hang you," he said quietly.

The pasty color of the fat man ebbed till his face seemed entirely bloodless. "My God! you wouldn't do that!" he moaned.

Underneath a rather scrubby cedar Dave drew up. He glanced it over critically. "Think I'll do?" he asked Crawford in a voice the prisoner could just hear.

"Yep. That bib'll hold him," the old cattleman answered in the same low voice. "Better let him stay right on the horse, then we'll lead it out from under him."

Miller pleaded for his life abjectly. His blood had turned to water. "Hon-est, I didn't shoot Harrigan. Why, I'm that tender-hearted I wouldn't hurt a kitten. I—I—"

Crawford's face was as cold and as hard as steel. "Why not? You're a murderer. You tried to gun Dave here when the boy didn't have a six-shooter."

The man under condemnation could hardly speak. His throat was dry as the desert dust below. "I—I done Mr. Sanders a meanness. I'm sorry."

"You lied about him and sent him to the penitentiary."

"I'll fix that. Lemme go an' I'll make that right."

"How will you make it right?" asked Crawford grimly, and the weight of his arm drew the rope so tight that Miller winced. "Can you give him back the years he's lost?"

"No, sir, no," the man whispered eagerly. "But I can tell how it was—that we fired first at him. Dobe did that, an' then—accidentally—I killed Dobe whilst I was shootin' at Mr. Sanders."

"Yessir, I did it—accidental—when Dobe run forward in front of me. That's right. I'm plumb sorry I didn't tell the court so when you was on trial, Mr. Sanders. I reckon I was scared to."

"Will you tell this of yore own free will to the sheriff down at Malapai?" asked Crawford.

"I sure will, Yessir, Mr. Crawford." The man's terror had swept away all thought of anything but the present peril. His color was a seashell green.

"It's too late now," cut in Dave savagely. "We came up about this stage robbery. Unless hell clear that up, I vote to finish the job."

"Let Miller do his own talkin' Shorty. He don't need any lead from me."

Dave drew his chief aside, still keeping a vigilant eye on the prisoner. "We've got to play our hand different. Shorty is game. He can't Shorty laughed hardly and spoke again. "Third degree stuff, eh?" Miller wasn't in that hold-up any more I—"

"Let Miller do his own talkin' Shorty. He don't need any lead from me."

"I sure will, Yessir, Mr. Crawford." The man's terror had swept away all thought of anything but the present peril. His color was a seashell green.

"It's too late now," cut in Dave savagely.

"We came up about this stage robbery. Unless hell clear that up, I vote to finish the job."

"Maybe we'd better," agreed the cattleman. "I'll tie the rope to the trunk of the tree and you lead the horse from under him Dave."

Miller broke down. He groveled. "I'll tell, I'll tell all I know. Dobe and Shorty held up the stage. I don't know who killed the driver. They didn't say when they came back."

"When did you escape?"

"On the way back to the penitentiary. A fellow give the deputy sheriff a drink on the train. It was doped. When he went to sleep I got off at the next depot. Horses was waitin' them for us."

"Who do you mean by us? Who was with you?"

"I don't know who he was. Fellow said Brad Steelman sent him to fix things up for me."

"WE'RE GOING TO HANG YOU," HE SAID QUIETLY.

be bluffed. But Miller can. I found out years ago he squeals at physical pain. We'll start for home. After a while we'll give Shorty a chance to make a getaway. Then we'll turn the screws on Miller."

"All right, Dave. You run it. I'll back you play," his friend said.

They took the back trail across the valley to the divide. It was here they gave Shorty his chance of escape. Miller was leading the way up the trail, with Crawford, Shorty, and Dave in the order named. Dave rode forward to confer with the owner of the D Bar Lazy R. For three seconds his back was turned to the squat cowpuncher.

Shorty whirled his horse and flung it wildly down the precipitous slope.

THE NUT BROTHERS
(Ches & Wal)Missouri Governor
Charges Auditor of State Made Mistake

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 6.—Gov. Arthur M. Hyde today charged that State Auditor George E. Hackmann had no legal right to collect $1,179 as stenographers' fees for twelve audits of as many counties between Nov. 18, 1919, and the close of last year.

Hackmann declared the money mostly was paid to three stenographers employed in his office and for increasing the salary of a janitor. He said, "I do not believe I have done anything wrong" regarding the charges which followed disclosure that an investigation of the auditor's office had been in progress several days.

Governor Hyde said the only legal charges that can be made are the per diem and expenses of accountants.

"I am going to take the entire matter up with the attorney general tomorrow," the governor declared. "It occurs to me that a grand jury investigation would be warranted."
